

Guest:

Dr. Rob Leone, PhD

Assistant Professor, Department of Political Science, Wilfrid Laurier University

"If you want people to vote, you need to rock the boat:
Analyzing the results of the 2010 municipal vote"

Rob Leone holds a PhD in Comparative Public Policy from the Department of Political Science at McMaster University. He also holds a MA in public policy and administration from the University of Guelph and a BA (Hons.) from McMaster. His academic expertise is in the areas of Canadian politics, public policy, and public administration. He maintains an interest in federal, provincial, and municipal politics, democratic reform, government accountability and transparency, ethics, and cabinet and prime ministerial leadership.

Rob Leone currently teaches political science at Wilfrid Laurier University. He is also part of the graduate political science department at the University of Guelph and the new Masters of Public Service program at the University of Waterloo.

Beyond the academic arena, Rob is an accomplished political consultant, which has given him the opportunity to have an inside view of the upper echelons of government. Rob is President of Viewpoint Policy Consultants Inc., which specializes in public affairs and political consulting. His practice focuses on public relations, communications, strategy and measuring public opinion.
